

1 all supporting documents submitted by the parties. For the reasons set
2 forth below, this Court RECOMMENDS that Respondents' Motion to Dismiss 3 [Doc. No. 9] be GRANTED and Petitioner's Motion/Declaration for 4 Equitable Tolling [Doc. No. 3] be DENIED.

5 FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

6 On August 27, 1991, Petitioner, who was seventeen years old at the 7 time, pled guilty in San Diego Superior Court to one count of second 8 degree murder with the personal use of a firearm. See Lodgment 1 at 2; 9 Pet., Exs. A & C. Thereafter, Petitioner moved to withdraw his guilty 10 plea. See Lodgment 1 at 3; Pet., Ex. B. On March 4, 1992, the trial
11 court denied Petitioner's motion and sentenced him to 15 years to life 12 for the second degree murder plus a consecutive four-year term for the 13 firearm enhancement. See id.

14 Petitioner appealed and in an unpublished decision filed on January 15 21, 1994, the California Court of Appeal affirmed the judgment. See 16 Lodgment 1 at 3; Pet., Ex. E. Thereafter Petitioner sought review in 17 the California Supreme Court. Lodgment 1. On March 30, 1994, the 18 California Supreme Court denied the petition. Lodgment 2.

19 On February 8, 2008, Petitioner filed a petition for writ of habeas 20 corpus in the San Diego County Superior Court claiming: (1) the Board of 21 Parole Hearings erred in finding him unsuitable for parole, (2) the 22 parole board violated the terms of Petitioner's plea agreement and the 23 trial court should have allowed Petitioner to withdraw his plea, 24 (3) Petitioner's trial counsel was ineffective because he misadvised 25 Petitioner as to the benefits of his plea, and (4) his appellate counsel 26 was ineffective for failing to raise ineffective assistance of trial 27 counsel as a grounds for appellate relief. Lodgment 3. On March 27, 28 2008, the superior court denied claim (1) on the merits, concluded that

1 claims (2) and (3) already had been "thoroughly reviewed and resolved" 2 on direct appeal, and rejected claim (4), finding that Petitioner had 3 failed to provide any evidence that his appellate counsel was 4 ineffective. Lodgment 4.

5 Petitioner filed a habeas petition in the California Court of 6 Appeal on May 9, 2008.<sup>1</sup> Lodgment 5. On July 3, 2008, the Court of 7 Appeal denied the petition, noting that Petitioner already had argued on 8 direct appeal that the trial court abused its discretion in denying his 9 motion to withdraw his guilty plea. Lodgment 6. Concluding that 10 Petitioner's second and third claims presented "the same issue cloaked 11 in terms of ineffective assistance of counsel," the appellate court 12 denied all three claims on the grounds that they were "procedurally 13 barred as repetitive." Id. (citing In re Clark, 5 Cal. 4th 750, 765, 14 767-68 (1993)). To the extent Petitioner alleged that the ineffective 15 assistance claims were separate and distinct issues, the court found 16 them untimely. Id. The Court of Appeal denied Petitioner's challenge 17 to the parole denial due to Petitioner's failure to provide a record.
18 Id.

19 In a habeas petition dated July 16, 2008, Petitioner presented his 20 two ineffective assistance of counsel claims to the California Supreme 21 Court. Lodgment 7. On December 17, 2008, the California Supreme Court 22 denied the petition, citing In re Robbins, 18 Cal. 4th 770, 780 (1998).
23 Lodgment 8.

24 Petitioner filed the instant federal habeas petition on January 23, 25

26
27 <sup>1</sup> In this petition, Petitioner only raised claims for ineffective assistance 28 of trial and appellate counsel. See Lodgment 5. However, the Court of Appeal addressed all four of the claims raised in Petitioner's habeas petition to the superior court. See Lodgment 6.

2009, alleging (1) ineffective assistance of trial counsel and (2) ineffective assistance of appellate counsel. Doc. No. 1. In support of his ineffective assistance of trial counsel claim, Petitioner explains that he was seventeen years old at the time the charges were brought and relied on his attorney for guidance. Pet. at 6 & Ex. F. He claims that his attorney told him that the prosecutor was offering a plea bargain whereby Petitioner would plead guilty to second degree murder and be sent to the California Youth Authority ("CYA") until he reached age twenty-five, at which time he would be released from custody. Id. He claims that counsel told him this was a good deal because, otherwise, Petitioner most likely would be convicted of first degree murder and kidnaping and given a sentence of twenty-five years to life in prison. Id. According to Petitioner, his trial attorney relayed the same information to Petitioner's father. Id. at 6 & Ex. E (January 21, 1994 Court of Appeal opinion denying Petitioner's direct appeal, which states that Petitioner's father testified to this effect at the hearing on Petitioner's motion to withdraw his guilty plea). After discussing it with his father, Petitioner decided to plead guilty because he would only be held at the CYA until age twenty-five, he and his father thought it was important that he take responsibility for his actions, and he would receive an education and learn a trade while in custody. Id. at 3, 9. Petitioner's father was not present at the change of plea hearing, at which Petitioner claims trial counsel directed him whether to answer "yes" or "no" to each question posed by the judge. Id. at 7.

Petitioner's second claim, for ineffective assistance of appellate counsel, is based on appellate counsel's failure to raise ineffective assistance of trial counsel as an issue on direct appeal. Id. at 8.

1 Petitioner explains that he filed a notice of appeal on May 12, 1992<sup>2</sup>, and 2 then sought representation from Appellate Defenders, Inc. Id. As his 3 attached application for representation by Appellate Defenders 4 demonstrates, Petitioner sought to appeal based on the fact that his 5 trial counsel misadvised him regarding the plea deal being offered and,
6 therefore, "did not represent [Petitioner] to his fully capability."
7 Id., Ex. F.

8 Appellate Defenders apparently assigned Petitioner's case to a 9 private attorney. Id. at 8; see also Lodgment 9 (Petitioner's opening 10 brief on direct appeal, which was filed by a private attorney under 11 appointment "under Appellate Defenders' Assisted Care System").
12 Petitioner claims he was unaware of this appointment and, thus, 13 continued writing to Appellate Defenders regarding his appeal. Pet. at 14 8 & Ex. I (May 16, 2008 letter from Appellate Defenders, in response to 15 Petitioner's request for his file, providing Petitioner with the name 16 and address of the private appointed attorney). While Petitioner 17 acknowledges having received letters informing him that his appeal was 18 denied at each stage of his direct appeal<sup>3</sup>, he claims neither the private 19 attorney nor Appellate Defenders ever sent Petitioner copies of his 20 opening brief or petition for review so he was unaware that the 21 ineffective assistance of counsel claim had never been raised. Pet. at

25 <sup>2</sup> The record does not contain a copy of this notice of appeal, so it is 26 unclear whether it was filed by counsel on Petitioner's behalf, or directly by 27 Petitioner. The phrasing of the Petition suggests that Petitioner prepared and filed the notice himself. See Pet. at 8.

28 <sup>3</sup> These letters are not attached to the Petition.

1 8; Pet'r Opp'n at 3<sup>4</sup>.

2 It was only in advance of his July 30, 2007 parole hearing, at 3 which time Petitioner was given access to his prison files, that 4 Petitioner saw a copy of the Court of Appeal's opinion on direct review 5 and claims he learned for the first time that his appellate counsel had 6 never raised ineffective assistance of trial counsel on direct appeal.
7 Pet. at 8. Thereafter, Petitioner requested a copy of his file from 8 Appellate Defenders. Id. In response, Appellate Defenders provided him 9 with some records, but informed him that they did not have his 10 transcripts because the transcripts would be in the private attorney's 11 possession, unless he had mailed them to Petitioner. Id., Ex. I.
12 Petitioner then wrote to the private attorney, who provided him with the 13 California Supreme Court's denial, but claimed he had returned the 14 transcripts to Appellate Defenders. Id.

15 Acknowledging that the timeliness of his federal petition might be 16 an issue, Petitioner requests equitable tolling, arguing that he acted 17 with due diligence upon learning of his appellate counsel's failure to 18 raise the ineffective assistance claim. Pet. at 10 and Mot. for 19 Equitable Tolling at 1-2.

20 SCOPE OF REVIEW

21 Title 28, United States Code, § 2254(a), sets forth the following 22 scope of review for federal habeas corpus claims:

23 The Supreme Court, a Justice thereof, a circuit judge, or a 24 district court shall entertain an application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a person in custody pursuant to the

---

26 <sup>4</sup> Petitioner attaches to his Opposition a 1993 letter from Appellate 27 Defenders to the private attorney, which he says shows that the private attorney was 28 sending everything to Appellate Defenders, not Petitioner. Pet'r Opp'n, Ex. A (letter from Appellate Defenders returning a draft opening brief to the private attorney after review).

1 judgment of a State court only on the ground that he is in 2 custody in violation of the Constitution or laws or treaties of the United States.

3 28 U.S.C. § 2254(a) (West 2006).

4 DISCUSSION

5 Respondent contends that the Petition should be dismissed because 6 Petitioner filed it more than eleven years and eight months after the 7 statutory limitations period expired. Resp't Mem. at 2.

8 A. Respondent Brown Should Be Dismissed As An Improper Party

9 As an initial matter, the petition names A. Hedgpeth and Edmund G.
10 Brown, Jr. as Respondents. Rule 2 of the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases 11 provides that the state officer having custody of a habeas petitioner 12 shall be named as respondent. Rule 2(a), 28 U.S.C. foll. § 2254. The 13 structure of the California penal system places prisoners in the custody 14 of both the Director of Corrections and the warden of the California 15 prison where the petitioner is incarcerated. See Ortiz-Sandoval v.
16 Gomez, 81 F.3d 891, 895-96 (9th Cir. 1996) (noting that "the warden of 17 a California prison and the Director of Corrections for California have 18 the power to produce the prisoner," and emphasizing that the Advisory 19 Committee Notes accompanying the Rules Governing § 2254 Cases 20 contemplate directors as possible respondents). Thus Hedgpeth, 21 identified as the warden of where Petitioner is currently incarcerated, 22 is a proper respondent, whereas Brown, the Attorney General of the State 23 of California, is not.<sup>5</sup>

24
25 <sup>5</sup> However, "if the applicant is not presently in custody pursuant to a state 26 judgment against which he seeks relief but may be subject to custody in the future," 27 then "the officer having present custody of the applicant as well as the attorney 28 general of the state in which the judgment which he seeks to attack was entered shall each be named as respondents." Rule 2(b), 28 U.S.C. foll. § 2254. Here, there is no basis for Petitioner to have named the Attorney General as a respondent in this action.

1 The Attorney General failed to move to dismiss Respondent Brown as 2 an improper party. Instead, the Attorney General opted to move to 3 dismiss on behalf of Respondent Hedgpeth only. Because the Court finds 4 that Brown was improperly named as a respondent, this Court RECOMMENDS 5 that Respondent Brown be DISMISSED as an improper party.

6 B. The AEDPA's Statute of Limitations

7 The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 8 ("AEDPA"), effective April 24, 1996, imposes a one-year statute of 9 limitations on federal petitions for writ of habeas corpus filed by 10 state prisoners. 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d) (West Supp. 2006). The one-year 11 limitations period runs from the latest of:

12 (A) the date on which the judgment became final by the 13 conclusion of direct review or the expiration of the time for seeking such review;

14 (B) the date on which the impediment to filing an application 15 created by State action in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States is removed, if the applicant was prevented from filing by such State action;

16 (C) the date on which the constitutional right asserted was 17 initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if the right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made 18 retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review; or

19 (D) the date on which the factual predicate of the claim or 20 claims presented could have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence.

21 Id. § 2244(d)(1)(A)-(D).

22 Petitioner's 1992 murder conviction became final before the April 23 24, 1996 enactment of the AEDPA. The AEDPA's statute of limitations, 24 therefore, began to run on April 25, 1996, the day after the AEDPA's 25 enactment, and expired one year later on April 24, 1997. Malcom v.
 26 Payne, 281 F.3d 951, 955 (9th Cir. 2002) (citing Patterson v. Stewart, 27 251 F.3d 1243 (9th Cir. 2001)). Even taking into account that 28 Petitioner constructively filed his federal petition on January 14,

1 2009<sup>6</sup>, the Petition still was filed over eleven years and eight months 2 late.

3 Petitioner argues that the statutory clock should not begin to run 4 until July 2007, the date on which he became aware of the factual
5 predicate of his ineffective assistance of counsel claim. 28 U.S.C.
6 § 2244(d)(1)(D). In support of his argument, Petitioner asserts that he 7 did not discover that his appellate attorney had not alleged an 8 ineffective assistance of counsel claim on direct appeal until he read 9 the appellate brief while reviewing the California Department of 10 Corrections and Rehabilitation files in preparation for his July 30, 11 2007 parole board hearing. Pet. at 8. Contrary to Petitioner's 12 argument, section 2244(d)(1)(D) does not delay the commencement of the 13 limitations period until the petitioner actually discovers the factual 14 predicate; it merely delays it until the petitioner could have 15 discovered the factual predicate "through the exercise of due 16 diligence." 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(D). Here, while Petitioner may have 17 "actually" discovered the alleged error in July of 2007, with due 18 diligence, he could have discovered the error years earlier. As 19 discussed more thoroughly in section B(2) below, Petitioner has not 20 demonstrated that he made any effort to participate in his direct appeal 21 or monitor the progress of his case. Had Petitioner requested copies of 22 his opening brief, the petition for review, or the court orders at each

24 <sup>6</sup> In determining the filing date of his petition, Petitioner is entitled to 25 the benefit of the "mailbox rule," which is the date the petition was presented to 26 prison authorities for mailing to the court. See Houston v. Lack, 487 U.S. 266, 276 27 (1988) (holding that petitioner's notice of appeal is deemed "filed at the time [he] 28 deliver[s] it to the prison authorities for forwarding to the court clerk"); Huizar v. Carey, 273 F.3d 1220, 1223 (9th Cir. 2001) (recognizing the application of Houston's mailbox rule to federal habeas filings). Here, the proof of service accompanying Petitioner's federal habeas petition bears a signature and handwritten date of January 14, 2009. Doc. No. 1.

1 stage during the pendency of his direct appeal, Petitioner would have 2 learned at that time that his attorney had not raised his desired claim.
3 He then could have filed a timely federal habeas petition. As such, he 4 does not satisfy section 2244(d)(1)(D)'s requirements and he is not 5 entitled to a delayed commencement of the limitations period.<sup>7</sup> 6 Consequently, absent tolling, the instant petition is untimely and 7 barred by the statute of limitations.

8 C. Tolling

9 1. Petitioner Is Not Entitled to Statutory Tolling

10 The AEDPA tolls its one-year limitations period for the "time 11 during which a properly filed application for State post-conviction or 12 other collateral review . . . is pending." 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(2); Nino 13 v. Galaza, 183 F.3d 1003, 1006 (9th Cir. 1999). The statute of 14 limitations is not tolled, however, "from the time a final decision is 15 issued on direct state appeal [to] the time the first state collateral 16 challenge is filed." Nino, 183 F.3d at 1006. Similarly, the 17 limitations period is not tolled after state post-conviction proceedings 18 are final and before federal habeas proceedings are initiated. See 28 19 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(2).

20 Petitioner is not entitled to statutory tolling. The California 21 Supreme Court denied his petition for review on March 30, 1994 (Lodgment 22 2), and Petitioner did not constructively file his first state habeas 23 petition until over thirteen years later on February 3, 2008 (Lodgment 24
25

26 <sup>7</sup> Moreover, even if Petitioner were entitled to the delayed limitations 27 period, Petitioner admits that he learned of the factual predicate in July 2007 so the 28 limitations period would have expired one year later on or before July 30, 2008. 28
U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(D). Petitioner did not file his federal petition until January 14, 2009 - more than five months later - so it still was untimely.

3 at 159).<sup>8</sup> As Respondent correctly notes (Resp't Mem. at 4), a collateral action cannot revive an expired limitations period. Jiminez v. Rice, 276 F.3d 478, 482 (9th Cir. 2001); Green v. White, 223 F.3d 1001, 1003 (9th Cir. 2000). Thus, unless Petitioner establishes an entitlement to equitable tolling, the instant Petition is untimely.

2. Petitioner Fails to Show That Equitable Tolling Is Warranted

Petitioner argues he is entitled to equitable tolling because his appellate counsel did not base the appeal on the ineffective assistance of trial counsel grounds Petitioner requested and did not provide Petitioner with copies of any court orders or transcripts, which would have allowed Petitioner to discover this omission earlier. Pet'r Opp'n at 2-4; Mot. for Equitable Tolling at 1-2. Respondent counters Petitioner's assertion regarding lack of knowledge, noting that the proofs of service attached to both the opening brief on direct appeal and the petition for review indicate that appellate counsel mailed copies of these documents to Petitioner. Resp't Mem. at 3 (citing Lodgments 1 & 9 and highlighting that the petition for review includes as an attachment the Court of Appeal's January 21, 1994 opinion). Petitioner denies having received either document. Pet'r Opp'n at 3.

In the Ninth Circuit, the AEDPA's one-year statute of limitations is subject to equitable tolling.<sup>9</sup> See Harris v. Carter, 515 F.3d 1051, 1055 n.4 (9th Cir. 2008) (confirming the Ninth Circuit holding that § 2244(d) allows for equitable tolling); Roy v. Lampert, 465 F.3d 964,

<sup>8</sup> This also was years after the AEDPA's statute of limitations expired on April 24, 1997.

<sup>9</sup> The Supreme Court has never squarely addressed the question of whether § 2244(d) allows for equitable tolling of the AEDPA's statute of limitations. Lawrence v. Florida, 549 U.S. 327, 336 (2007) (assuming without deciding that equitable tolling applies to the AEDPA's limitations period).

1 970 (9th Cir. 2006) (same). While equitable tolling is "unavailable in 2 most cases," Miles v. Prunty, 187 F.3d 1104, 1107 (9th Cir. 1999), it is 3 appropriate where a habeas petitioner demonstrates two specific 4 elements: "(1) that he has been pursuing his rights diligently, and 5 (2) that some extraordinary circumstance stood in his way," Pace v.
6 DiGuiglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 418 (2005). Petitioners face such a high bar 7 so as to effectuate the "AEDPA's statutory purpose of encouraging prompt 8 filings in federal court in order to protect the federal system from 9 being forced to hear stale claims." Guillory v. Rose, 329 F.3d 1015, 10 1018 (9th Cir. 2003) (citing Carey v. Saffold, 536 U.S. 214, 226 11 (2002)).

12 Even if the Court accepts all of Petitioner's allegations as true, 13 they do not excuse Petitioner's failure to follow up with appellate 14 counsel in any respect after the denials on direct appeal or to make 15 some effort to participate in the appeal process. As the Third Circuit 16 concisely stated, "a habeas petitioner is not excused from exercising 17 due diligence merely because he has representation during various stages 18 of, or even throughout, his state and federal proceedings." LaCava v.
19 Kyler, 398 F.3d 271, 277-78 (3rd Cir. 2005) (finding petitioner failed 20 to act diligently in waiting twenty-one months to ask counsel or the 21 court about status of petition and, thus, that petitioner was not 22 entitled to equitable tolling); see also Hunter v. Galaza, 2007 WL 23 2812176, *6-*7 (E.D. Cal. Sept. 26, 2007) (adopting in full magistrate 24 judge's recommendation that equitable tolling be denied based on 25 conclusion that, even if counsel is negligent, petitioner is not 26 relieved "of his own responsibility to be aware of and to know what was 27 happening in his direct appeal or to take reasonable steps to file his 28 federal habeas petition within one year of the conclusion of the direct

1 appeal"); Thompson v. Tilton, 2009 WL 596605, *10 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 6, 2 2009) (finding equitable tolling unwarranted for lack of diligence where 3 petitioner did not make any effort to follow up with attorney prior to 4 expiration of statute of limitations regarding potential filing of 5 habeas petition). Counsel may have been at fault for failing to notify 6 Petitioner that private counsel, as opposed to Appellate Defenders, was 7 representing him on appeal. But Petitioner himself acknowledges that 8 one or the other contacted him via letter after his appeal was denied at 9 each level. Pet. at 8. Petitioner could have responded by requesting 10 a copy of his opening brief, petition for review and/or the Court of 11 Appeal and California Supreme Court's decisions. He did not attach to 12 his Petition any correspondence suggesting that he made such requests 13 during the pendency of his direct appeal and Appellate Defenders' 14 response to his 2008 letter (see Pet., Ex. I) suggests that they would 15 have promptly provided records and his private appellate attorney's name 16 and contact information upon request.

17 A petitioner who abdicates all responsibility for prosecuting his 18 case to his attorney runs the risk that the attorney will make different 19 decisions than the petitioner may himself have made. In this case, had 20 Petitioner made any effort to communicate with his attorney during the 21 direct appeal, he would have learned at that time of counsel's failure 22 to raise his desired ineffective assistance of counsel claim and could 23 have filed a timely federal habeas petition. His lack of diligence does 24 not warrant equitable tolling over a decade later. See, e.g., LaCava, 25 398 F.3d at 277; Hunter, 2007 WL 2812176 at *6-*7; Thompson, 2009 WL 26 596605 at *10.

27 Petitioner argues that this case is analogous to Spitsyn v. Moore, 28 345 F.3d 796 (9th Cir. 2003), wherein the Ninth Circuit confirmed that

1 "where an attorney's misconduct is sufficiently egregious, it may 2 constitute an 'extraordinary circumstance' warranting equitable tolling
3 of AEDPA's statute of limitations." Spitsyn, 345 F.3d at 800 (citing 4 Ford v. Hubbard, 330 F.3d 1086, 1106 (9th Cir. 2003) ("there are 5 instances in which an attorney's failure to take necessary steps to 6 protect his client's interests is so egregious and atypical that the 7 court may deem equitable tolling appropriate")). In Spitsyn, the 8 prisoner's mother hired an attorney, nearly a year before the statutory 9 deadline, to file a federal habeas petition on behalf of her son. Id.
10 at 798. The attorney failed to do so within the one-year limitations 11 period and also failed to return the client's file until two months 12 after the statutory deadline expired (despite the client's pre-deadline 13 letter terminating his representation and requesting that he return the 14 file). Id. Given these circumstances, the court concluded that "the 15 misconduct of Spitsyn's attorney was sufficiently egregious to justify 16 equitable tolling of the one-year limitations period under AEDPA." Id.
17 at 801.

18 The Court finds Spitsyn distinguishable from the circumstances
19 presented in the instant Petition. As an initial matter, Petitioner's 20 counsel did not fail to timely file any petitions, he simply did not 21 present the claim Petitioner apparently wished to argue in the manner 22 Petitioner preferred. Petitioner argues that he wanted to allege 23 ineffective assistance (Pet. at 8), but appellate counsel merely argued 24 judicial error for failing to state the statutory minimum penalty, which 25 implicitly incorporated Petitioner's argument (Lodgment 1 at 6). If 26 anything, appellate counsel's failure to include the ineffective 27 assistance claim that Petitioner raised on his request for appellate 28 counsel form was mere negligence and even the Spitsyn court acknowledged

1 that the Ninth Circuit "[has] not applied equitable tolling in 2 non-capital cases where attorney negligence has caused the filing of a 3 petition to be untimely." Spitsyn, 345 F.3d at 800.<sup>10</sup> Second, whereas 4 both Spitsyn and his mother repeatedly wrote to the attorney asking 5 about the status of the case and even contacted the Washington State Bar 6 Association and filed grievances against the attorney when he failed to 7 respond, id., Petitioner does not present any evidence suggesting that 8 he ever contacted Appellate Defenders or the private attorney during the 9 pendency of his direct appeal requesting further information or 10 documentation regarding the claims raised and the courts' dispositions 11 of those claims. See Hunter, 2007 WL 2812176 at *6 (finding case 12 distinguishable from Spitsyn where petitioner did not make any effort 13 for over a year to contact his attorney or the California Supreme Court 14 to verify the status of his petition). Moreover, Petitioner did not 15 timely file a state habeas petition raising the ineffective assistance 16 claims allegedly overlooked by his appellate counsel. In sum, the Court 17 finds equitable tolling unwarranted because Petitioner's counsel's 18 alleged conduct was not sufficiently "egregious" to justify equitable 19 tolling and Petitioner did not act with reasonable diligence.

20 For the foregoing reasons, the Court finds that the instant 21 Petition was filed well after the statute of limitations expired and 22 Petitioner has not satisfied his burden of demonstrating that equitable 23 tolling is appropriate in this case. See Gaston v. Palmer, 417 F.3d 24

25 <sup>10</sup> Numerous courts have confirmed that ordinary negligence on the part of 26 counsel is not an extraordinary circumstance warranting equitable tolling. See 27 Lawrence, 549 U.S. at 336 ("Attorney miscalculation [of the AEDPA's limitations period] 28 is simply not sufficient to warrant equitable tolling"); Stillman v. LaMarque, 319 F.3d 1199, 1203 & n. 6 (9th Cir. 2003) (noting that routine instances of attorney negligence are not grounds for equitable tolling); Frye v. Hickman, 273 F.3d 1144, 1146 (9th Cir.
2001) (holding that attorney miscalculation and "negligence in general" are not sufficient to warrant equitable tolling).

1 1030, 1034 (9th Cir. 2005) (holding that the petitioner "bears the 2 burden of showing that equitable tolling is appropriate"). As a result, 3 this Court finds that the claims presented in the Petition are barred by 4 the AEDPA's one-year statute of limitations and, therefore, RECOMMENDS
5 that Respondent's Motion to Dismiss be GRANTED and Petitioner's Motion 6 for Equitable Tolling be DENIED.

7 CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATION

8 For the foregoing reasons, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that the Court 9 issue an Order: (1) approving and adopting this Report and 10 Recommendation; (2) granting Respondents' Motion to Dismiss; (3) denying 11 Petitioner's Motion for Equitable Tolling, and (4) dismissing this 12 action in its entirety with prejudice.

13 IT IS ORDERED that no later than May 20, 2009, any party to this 14 action may file written objections with the Court and serve a copy on 15 all parties. The document should be captioned "Objections to Report and 16 Recommendation."

17 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any reply to the objections shall be 18 filed with the Court and served on all parties no later than June 10, 19 2009. The parties are advised that failure to file objections within 20 the specified time may waive the right to raise those objections on 21 appeal of the Court's order. See Turner v. Duncan, 158 F.3d 449, 455 22 (9th Cir. 1998).
